zimbabweh updated XYZ with a new update entry:

Added /xyz sethome and /xyz home command, as well as /xyza home (player)

/xyz sethome - set home
/xyz home - teleport to home if set
Note: Both of those commands require xyz.user and xyz.homes, since I'm assuming not every server wants their players to be able to set homes but they might want to allow them access to other permissions.

/xyza home (player) - teleport to the supplied player's home.

Very nice plugin, the only coordinate plugin that works, and you could put it if you want to implement being able to see the coordinates of / xyz home, in case a player just wants to follow the coordinates and not teleport

I can't figure out how to get it to not tell me they are locked...

I just realized I accidentally coded that incorrectly. I'm going to fix it right now, thank you.

/xyz cross doesn't have any extra argument to include a player. its meant to be used only by yourself, so /xyz cross shows the block that you are looking directly at. I don't know why you would be including a player name with that command.

zimbabweh updated XYZ with a new update entry:

/xyza players update and portal lock update

/xyza players displays a list of players and their heads with specific information about both in a custom GUI, with the ability to click the head to teleport to the player.

Portal locking will now prevent all entities rather than just players from teleporting.
